Headteacher update:

World Book Day Celebrations 2023

It was so great to see so many wonderful book characters in school today. Everyone had made such a fantastic effort and were all keen to share their choices and their favourite books with each other, staff and children alike.

It was good to be able to host a coffee morning led by Bristol Parent/Carer Forum on Tuesday. The group are led by parents of children with SEND and they do some fantastic work in collating and sharing useful information about activities, resources and support groups available to support families of children with SEND. There contact details and a leaflet of some of these resources is available on our SEND page.

Another great resource shared recently that can be used with all children is the parent guide to emotion coaching. This approach is about recognising the validity of all feelings and working alongside your child to recognise and respond to feelings when they are at lower intensity so that they can develop strategies to regulate big emotions.

In our school assembly and on Thursday's home learning, we used the book 'Listening to your body' which starts with recognising sensations such as hunger or tiredness and moves on to feelings. This is a great way in to increasing awareness. Here is a link to the slides that have a link to a recording of this story.

Curriculum Update: KS1 Theatre Workshop

Our Key Stage 1 children also had a special treat of a session with Sky from the Helen O'Grady Drama Company. They were all amazing and fully engaged. Sky commented that each class listened so carefully and really let themselves go. After pretending to eat 'Drama Gum' to warm up their mouths with exercises they found themselves far away from Henleaze, in a special campsite. They acted out lots of scenarios, including moving in 'slow-motion'! All the staff and children agreed that it had been really fun and has hopefully inspired our Year 1 children in preparation for our rehearsals for their production at the end of term. Thank you Sky.
