'Be kind, be curious, be you'

2nd May 2024 Bulletin

Headteacher update:

Thankfully being able to look ahead to some of the exciting experiences planned for this year's enrichment week taking place next week has taken my mind of the infernal mopping needed to manage the leak in the hall roof!

Mrs Brand and Mrs Grant have arranged some fantastic visitors and activities that will place throughout the week. The aim is to help us learn more about one another, in particular things of cultural significance to staff, children and families. Over the long weekend, it would be helpful if you could talk to your child about anything that they might like to share in school. This could be the origin or significance of their name, knowledge of family who live in a country other than Britain, a story that represents your family heritage or has some personal significance, or perhaps something else that has cultural significance to your family.

We're really excited about finding out more about other cultures and traditions through the various activities next week. Thank you for your support of FHIS for the funding that is enabling these enrichment experiences and supporting us to purchase some resources to continue to bring greater diversity to our curriculum.

Another thank you to those of you who supported our Tesco 'Stronger starts' appeal over the past few months. We heard this week that we had won £1400 to develop our sensory room.

Have a lovely long weekend,

Kind Regards

Gemma Fricker
